

PATIENT INFORMATION

Puberty Information for Girls

Pediatric & Adult Medicine, Inc.
13132 Newport Ave. #100
Tustin, CA 92780
714.565.7960 (tele)
714.565.7982 (fax)
www.pam4kids.com

---

As a part of growing up, you will go through puberty. Puberty is the time in your life when your body changes from that of the child to that of an adult. These changes are caused by chemicals in the body called hormones. Because there are so many changes that happened during puberty, you may feel like your body is out of control. In time, your hormones will balance out and your body will catch up.

Not only does your body change, but your emotions change too. How you think and feel about yourself, your family and friends, your whole world, they seem different. As you go through puberty, you will begin to make important decisions for yourself, take on more responsibilities, and become more independent.

If you are already going through some of these changes, you may be asking yourself, "Am I normal?" Or "do other people my age feel the way I do?" Don't worry. Lots of changes happen during puberty, and, although it can be a confusing time of life, it can be exciting.

Information for girls.

Puberty is the time and the girl's life, when her body changes from that of a young girl to that of a woman. It is also the time when a girl becomes physically able to have babies. Although there is no "right" time for puberty to began, it generally start earlier for a girl than it does for a boy - usually between 9 and 13 years of age. This is why many girls are taller and may act more mature than boys for a few years, until the boys catch up.

How will my body change?

Following are some of the changes that your body will go through during puberty:

- Breasts: in most girls, puberty starts with breast growth. When your breasts start to develop, you may notice small, tender lumps, under one or both nipples that will get bigger over the next few years. When breasts first began to develop, it is not unusual for one breast to be larger than the other. However, as they develop, they will most likely even out before they reach their final size and shape.

Some girls feel that wearing a bra for the first time is exciting - it is the first step toward becoming a woman! However, some girls feel embarrassed, especially if they are among the first of their friends to need a bra. If the people around you make a bigger deal of your first bra than you would like, try to remember that they do not mean to embarrass you, they are just proud of how much you have grown.

- Hair: soft hair will start to grow in the pubic area (the area between your legs). This hair will eventually become thick and very curly. You may also notice hair under your arms and on your legs. Many women shaved this hair. There is no medical reason to shave, it is simply a personal choice. If you decide to shave, be sure to use a lot of soap and water and a clean razor made for women. It is a good idea to use your own personal razor.

- Body shape: hips get wider and your waist will get smaller. Your body will also begin to build up fat in the stomach, buttocks and legs. This is normal and gives your body, the curvier shape of a woman.
- Skin: skin may get more oily and you may have noticed you sweat more. This is because your glands are growing too. It is important to wash every day to keep your skin clean, and to use deodorant or anti-perspiration to keep odor and wetness under control. Almost all teenagers get acne at one time or another. Whether your case is mild or severe, there are things you can do to keep it under control. For more information on controlling acne. See "acne treatment and control".
- Menstruation: your menstrual cycle, or "period," begins. Most girls get their periods between 9 and 16 years of age.

What happens during my period?

During puberty, your ovaries begin to release eggs. If an egg is fertilized by sperm from a man's penis, it will grow inside your uterus and develop into a baby. To prepare for this, a thick layer of tissue and blood cells build up in your uterus. If the egg does not meet with the sperm, these tissues and cells are not needed by the body. They turn into a blood-like fluid and flow out of the vagina. The menstrual period is the monthly discharge of this fluid out of the body. When a girl begins to have periods, she is able to get pregnant.

During your period, you will need to wear some kind of sanitary pad and/or tampon to absorb this fluid and keep it from getting on your clothes. Pads have adhesive strips and are worn inside the panties. Tampons are placed inside the vagina. Some girls prefer pads because they are not comfortable with inserting tampons into their vaginas.

When using a tampon for the first time, take your time, relax, and insert the tampon slowly into your vagina. This will allow the muscles in your vagina to relax and a tampon to go in easily. Make sure the string remains on the outside of your vagina so that you can remove the tampon. To avoid infection, change tampons often, and do not wear them overnight.

Pads are often called "Maxi" pads or "mini" pads and can be thick or thin. These are good for when the flow of your period is heaviest. Panty liners, which are very thin, can be used for the end of your period, when there is usually very little discharge. Tampons come in different levels of thickness for when your period is heavy or light. Try out different brands and find the one you like the best.

Most periods last from three to seven days. After your period, you may have a day or two of light bleeding, called spotting. This is normal.

Having your period. Does not mean that you have to avoid any of your normal activities like swimming, horseback riding, or gym class. Exercise can even help get rid of cramps and other discomforts that you may feel during your period.

Beginning with their first period, many girls expect their menstrual cycles to occur exactly on schedule. That rarely happens. During their first year (and sometimes longer). Some girls have periods that seem to have no schedule. Cycles can be as short as three weeks; others as long as six weeks or longer. It may take awhile for your periods to become regular (every three to five weeks). Even after they do become regular, it is not unusual for a girl to miss a period. If she is sick, under a lot of stress, exercising heavily, has a poor diet, or is nervous about something. Of course, more than any other reason, pregnancy can cause a girls period to stop.

Some girls bleed heavier than others during their periods. You have about 5 quarts of blood in your body can only lose one to 3 ounces of it during your period. If your period is really heavy (you soak more than six to eight pads or tampons in a single day), talk to your pediatrician.

Some common symptoms include:

- Cramps
- Bloating
- Soreness or swelling in your breasts
- Headaches
- Set in the mood changes, such as sadness or irritability
- Depression

If you feel your symptoms are severe, talk to your pediatrician. Most of the time, cramping and other symptoms are mild and easy to control. Your pediatrician may suggest some medications or exercises to help you feel better.

If you have any of the following symptoms, contact your pediatrician:

- a sudden change in year. That does not have an obvious cause (like an illness).
- A very heavy menstrual bleeding that lasts more than seven to 10 days.
- Bleeding between periods.
- Severe abdominal pain that lasts more than two days and is not early in your period.

Emotional changes during puberty.

Many people your age feel self-conscious about their changing bodies -- too tall, too short, too fat, too skinny. Because puberty causes so many changes, it is hard not to compare what is going on with your body with what is happening to your friends bodies. Try to keep in mind that everyone goes to puberty differently. Eventually, everyone catches up.

Sex and growing up.

During this time, you also become more aware of your sexuality. A look, touch, or just thinking about someone may make your heart beat faster and produce a warm, tingling feeling all over. This is completely normal. You may be asking yourself the following questions:

- "Is it OK to masturbate (touch your genitals for sexual pleasure)?"
- "When should I start dating?"
- "When is it OK to kiss?"
- "How far is too far?"
- "When will I be ready to have sexual intercourse?"
- "Will having sex help my relationship?"

Masturbation is normal and will not harm you. Many boys and girls masturbate, many do not. Deciding to become sexually active can be very confusing. On one hand, you hear so many warnings and dangers about having sex. On the other hand, movies, TV, magazines, even billboards seem to be telling you that having sex is OK. The fact is, sex is a part of life, and, like many parts of life, it can be good or bad. It all depends on you and the choices you make.

As you continue through puberty, you may experience pressure from many sources to have sex. Knowing where the pressure comes from will make them much easier to deal with. Pressure to have sex may come from:

- The Media: because there are so many images in the media about sex, it is easy to get the idea that having sex is the right thing to do. Do not let these messages fool you. In real life, having sex can be very risky.
- Your own body: it is perfectly normal to be interested in sex. After all, growing sexually is what puberty is all about. The sexual urges you feel during puberty can be very powerful. What is most important is to stay in control of these feelings and not let them control you. Keep in mind that sex is not the only way to express how you feel about someone. Taking walks, talking, holding hands, hugging, and touching are great ways to be close to someone you have strong feelings for.
- Your friends: it may seem like "everybody's doing it." Or that people who have sex are "cool." Maybe you feel like you should have sex to be popular and fit in with the group. However, people like to talk about sex and some may want others to believe that they are having sex. Even when they are not. Someone who does not want to be your friend, just because you are not having sex is probably someone who is not worth being friends with anyway. Do not let friends -- or anyone -- talk you into having sex. This is a decision you make when it's right for you, not for your friends.

Deciding whether to have sexual intercourse is one of the most important decisions, you will ever make. Why not take your time and think it through? Talk with your parents about their values. Waiting to have sexual intercourse until you are older, in a serious relationship, and able to accept the responsibilities that come along with it is ideal. You should enjoy being young without having to worry about things like pregnancy and deadly diseases.

However, if you decide to have sex, talk with your pediatrician about which type of birth control is best for you. When using condoms, always use latex condoms to prevent sexually transmitted diseases, like Chlamydia, herpes, and HIV (the AIDS virus). For more information on preventing pregnancy, ask your pediatrician about the AAP brochures. "Deciding to Wait" and "Making the Right Choice: Facts for Teens on Preventing Pregnancy."

Learning to take care of yourself.

As you get older, there will be many decisions that you will need to make to ensure that you stay healthy. Eating right, exercising, and getting enough rest are important during puberty because of all the changes your body is going through. It is also important to feel good about yourself and the decisions you make. You have to learn to take care of your own body, work hard and maintain good health, and to like yourself as you are.